About Western Oregon University:

Western Oregon University is a regional public, mid-sized university – committed to changing lives, strengthening communities and transforming our world. Located in Monmouth, the heart of Oregon's lush Willamette Valley, WOU is about 20 minutes from Salem, the state's capital and about 75 minutes from Portland, the state's cultural hub.

Western is one of Oregon's oldest public institutions of higher education and was incorporated into the state system as a teacher training institution in 1882. The university offers undergraduate and graduate degrees in arts and sciences, education and professional areas. It's known for small class sizes, a focus on sustainability and a diverse liberal arts education in a student-centered environment. Western is a Hispanic Serving institution, with over 40% of undergraduates being students of color.

Position Summary:

The Biology Department at Western Oregon University invites applications for adjunct faculty positions. We seek applicants who are interested in teaching primarily lower division biology courses (e.g., General Biology, Principles of Biology, lower division Human Anatomy & Physiology). Additional courses may be available depending on the candidate's education and experience. Appointments will be made on a term-by-term basis. Faculty hired for these positions will join a collaborative and student-centered department committed to academic excellence and inclusive and supportive teaching practices. The Biology Department offers a rigorous curriculum that prepares students for a wide range of careers and graduate and professional study. For more information about the department and its programs, please visit: wou.edu/biology

Please Note: This is a pool position, which means applications are accepted on an ongoing basis to build a qualified candidate pool. Selected applicants may be contacted as openings become available.
